As Victoria's first female professional surf lifesaving lifeguard, a national level swimmer and water polo player, Carol experienced the mindset of champions firsthand.

Her many years as a University Lecturer and Executive Director of Waterpolo confirmed her belief that champions are simply people who have found their life's purpose and who live that purpose with clear focus and happiness.

Carol works extensively throughout Victoria with the Country Fire Authority (CFA) teaching leadership programs to professional fire-fighters and support staff.

Her Master's Thesis: "Women's Perceived Barriers to Elite Coaching Positions in Australian Sport" was used extensively by the Australian Sports Commission in determining policies for women in sport and has applications in management.

Life Saving Victoria through sponsorship from the Australian Sports Commission and Sport and Recreation Victoria will cover the cost of participation for all females in the network.
